As part of CDUHR's mentorship program, mentoring is particularly encouraged among new and early stage investigators and/or investigators new to HIV and substance use research. We recommend working with two mentors: the primary mentor must be a CDUHR core member (the list of CDUHR core members can be found HERE) and a trans-disciplinary mentor (someone from a discipline different than your own).

1. Please indicate your preferred primary mentor and why you feel they will best serve as a mentor on your project. If you are unsure, please indicate that and we can match you with a mentor.

2. A trans-disciplinary mentor is intended to bring a broader perspective to your research. Please indicate your preferred trans-disciplinary mentor and why you feel they will best serve as a mentor on your project. If you are unsure, please indicate that and provide a brief description of the discipline you would require and we can match you with a mentor.

3. If you would not like to receive mentorship, please indicate this below and include a brief explanation of why mentorship is not needed.

4. Please specify if you are representative of one or more of the following categories: (1) new or early stage investigator; (2) established investigator without prior experience in the field of substance use and HIV research; (3) established investigator pursuing a new area of inquiry within the field of substance use and HIV research; and/or (4) underrepresented investigator in the field of HIV and substance use research as defined by NIDA/NIH (these include: individuals from racial and ethnic minority populations; individuals with disability; and individuals from socially, culturally, economically or educationally disadvantaged backgrounds who wish to pursue a career in health-related research).
